Whether you work in regulatory affairs or are directly responsible for the quality management of a manufacturing unit, Australian regulations require that all medicines proffered to the community are manufactured in a GMP compliant facility. This one-day workshop will hone your understanding of the principles of internal auditing including emphasis on the difficulties associated with importing medicines from overseas; when you can't control the day-to-day quality. You will discuss the questions you need to ask when auditing either on site or from a distance, through the presentation of hypothetical scenarios based on industry experiences. Substantial hand out guides will be given to each participant.

In essence the workshop is professional development for people in the therapeutic product industry.
