The 1980's . "This was a time, when there was reluctance within chemical companies - certainly among their engineers - to believe that outsourcing could be better than their own in-house production. But their managers were soon amazed at the prices and speed at which their processes could be handled by contract manufacturers." John Wetzel, Director Fine Chemicals, Rütgers Organics Corp, 2005

The growth of contracting within the therapeutic industry is a global phenomenon as organisations out-source all aspects of the manufacturing process as defined by the Therapeutic Goods Act (1989), including research and development. Irrespective of where the product or its components are sourced GMP applies and a GMP Agreement is required. This Workshop will present guidelines as to how agreements within contracts can be efficiently negotiated and written thereby limiting risk. In addition the requirements as outlined by the TGA for overseas manufacturers will be integrated into the workshop.

Attendees will accumulate credit points towards the University of NSW Graduate Certificate/Diploma in GMP program.

Who Should Attend

Quality managers and regulatory managers for manufacturers, contract or otherwise, as well product sponsors and service providers such as contract laboratory personnel will gain an insight into the GMP Agreement process.

Workshop Facilitation

Useful hand-out material including step-by-step guidelines will be discussed and facilitated. The TGA have agreed to be present at the workshop.
